IN CASE YOU MISSED IT

December was an active month for the City of Colusa, with several important developments shaping the city's direction. The City Council held its annual reorganization, appointing a new Mayor and Mayor Pro-Tem to lead the city into 2025. This leadership transition sets the foundation for advancing priorities in the coming year.

The Planning Commission revised its regular meeting schedule to improve accessibility and streamline city planning processes, reinforcing the city's commitment to community engagement in governance.

City staff and the City Council engaged in a robust discussion about the City's Well Project, addressing key aspects of its development and the project's significance for local infrastructure and water resource management.

Additionally, the City Council hosted a workshop focused on updating the city's purchasing policy, ensuring transparency and alignment with current operational practices. These efforts highlight Colusa's dedication to efficient governance, strategic planning, and community-driven progress as it moves forward into 2025.

An infographic titled "City Wells Project" with a green header. It lists project details and well status updates. The text includes: "Project #0610002-0010 City of Colusa Well Consolidation Project Class D $3,495,624 in DWSRF Funding", "Wells 2 & 3 DWSRF Funded Project: The City plans to decommission Wells 2 and 3. Currently, Well 3 is not in operation because it incurs an average daily cost of $5,000. This decision is why the City relies on the well as ODF for 12 months during the summer season. On average, the City's expense for supplementing from the ODF for Well 3 amount to $5,000 per month.", "Well 4 Well 4 will be incorporated into the City's Supervisory and Data Control System.", "Well 5 DWSRF Funding will add treatment for magnesium and iron.", "Well 6 DWSRF Funding will add Odor Control Treatment to well.", "New City Well (Well 9) DWSRF Funding has been allocated for a new well, which will be situated at the southern end of 8th Street, with a pumping capacity of 2,000 to 2,500 gallons per minute (GPM). Once it is fully operational, all other active City Wells will serve as emergency standby. The project will also include treatment for arsenic as necessary." The background of the flyer features a close-up of a pile of autumn leaves in shades of orange, yellow, and brown. A leaf rake with a wooden handle and a metal head is positioned diagonally across the upper left. On the right side, there is a circular seal for the City of Colusa, California, established in 1868. The seal is divided into four quadrants: the top left shows a Native American figure in traditional headdress, the top right shows two birds in flight, the bottom left shows a tree, and the bottom right shows a fish. The text "CITY OF COLUSA" is at the top and "CALIFORNIA" is at the bottom of the seal, with "ESTABLISHED 1868" in the center.
